

Spreading Fires Threaten Eight Leaky Tanks Of High Octane Gas In Texas City: 650 Dead And 3,000 Injured

Texas City, Tex., April 17 (P)—Rumbling oil fires sending walls of black smoke a mile high crept close to eight leaking tanks of high octane gasoline here today and Texas City, rocked yesterday and today by five major explosions, waited tensely for more.

The death toll stood at an estimated 650, with 3,000 injured, according to Dr. Clarence Quinn, medical coordinator appointed by Mayor J. C. Trahan.

Deputy Constable Herbert Whitmore of Galveston county said all of Texas City was in danger. He said if the wind shifted to the south "Texas City is liable to go."

Fight To Block Spreading Flames
The harbor area has been evacuated of rescue and relief workers. No effort is being made to extinguish the oil fires, but firemen are keeping it from spreading to nearby residential and business sections.

The city's 15,000 residents had dwindled to about 1,000 today, A. R. Duncan, Houston policeman, said. Many made homeless have moved to a nearby army camp and to Galveston, Houston and other towns.

The fear of chlorine gas last night caused others to leave. A false rumor spread that an official evacuation order has been issued, and caused hundreds to move. The gas is still a threat today, and gas masks are worn.

Highways To Ghost Town Are Blocked
Highways leading to Texas City are blocked and no one is allowed to enter the razed ghost town unless he is on official business.

The weather was clear but cool, and blankets were being worn Indian fashion by hundreds.

The task of embalming the 223 bodies at the improvised morgue in the school gymnasium was completed early today. But more bodies are still being found and moved to the gymnasium, still decorated with wilted hunting from a recent school party.

Only one instance of looting was reported. Highway patrolmen picked up a negro last night. They found $6,000 in cash on him, and took him into custody.

Little effort was being made today to clear up debris. However, Ap Dopping, Associated Press staff writer, said they were "scooping up plate glass like snow" in the business area.

Spreading Fire Is Big Threat
J. H. Hill, named the official spokesman for Mayor Trahan, said at 9:30 a. m. (CST) that "we are far from being out of danger. The thing we fear now is the spread of oil fires."

Eighty thousand pounds of foamite was rushed here from Baytown by the Humble Oil company, and 120 new firefighters were sent by Shell to join those on hand.

L. D. Romine, Red Cross official, said the major problem facing them today was the feeding of the homeless, and the rescue and relief workers. Financial aid was being given to the poor in hospitals and elsewhere by the Red Cross.

Three new explosions rocked this Texas coast industrial city today. They followed the two yesterday morning at 9:12 a. m. that set off the chain of disaster and tragedy described as the worst in Texas in half a century.

Death Toll May Reach 1,200
After conferring with the Red Cross, Doctor Quinn said that 400 were known to be dead and that another 250 dead were believed to be in the debris along the waterfront. He said that 3,000 were injured.

Other estimates of the dead ranged from 223 to 1,200. At dawn a blanket of billowing black smoke covered the city, the result of new oil fires caused by the newest explosions of the Liberty ship High Flyer.

Deputy Constable Herbert Whitmore of Galveston county said all Texas City was in danger.

"If the wind turns back to the south, Texas City is liable to go," he said. "If those tanks start burning we can't stop them."

The burning nitrate-laden freighter High Flyer blew-up early this morning as tugs tried to tow her away from the docks.

Casualties On Rescue Tugs

Sgt. J. E. Kent of the Houston Police department said at least two persons were killed and 30 more injured in this explosion in a series which began yesterday with a fire on another nitrate-laden ship—the French freighter Grandcamp.

Mayor Trahan ordered emergency equipment and ambulances to Pier 10. He said that although the four tugs moving the burning vessel had escaped, there were casualties aboard them.

The High Flyer caught fire last night as fires set by yesterday's explosions spread, threatening industrial plants along the waterfront.

A secondary explosion occurred at 3:25 a. m., but it was far from being as intense as the two earlier. It appeared to come from one of the numerous oil tanks that dot the city.

Capt. Volney J. Shown of the Houston Police department and director of rescue work, said that five minutes before the High Flyer blew up he had ordered 400 rescue workers out of the dock area and that only 50 men were in the area at the time of the explosion.

Can't Find Many Workers

Officials were watching closely the progress of rescue workers who for the first time since shortly after yesterday morning's explosions, penetrated the Monsanto Chemical company plant, located in the immediate vicinity of the initial explosion on the French vessel, the Grandcamp.

Only a comparatively small number of the 800 employees of the company reportedly have been located.

Collection station attendants expressed fear the chemical company toll might push fatalities above the 1,000 mark. Only police, military personnel and relief workers were permitted to remain in the city last night.

An estimated 500 policemen, 250 troops and 250 special deputies were patrolling streets.

Danger of chlorine was reported to be slight, in that the only known gases at the Monsanto plant were styrene, propane and butane. Thousands of homeless residents were taken out of the city by army trucks, buses, special trains, and private cars to points as far away as Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange, near the Louisiana-state line.

Search Waterfront Ruins For Dead

Chief of Police W. L. Ladish said that only essential personnel would be permitted to remain here today (Thursday) and no one would be permitted to enter the area except on official and essential business.

"No man will get into town Thursday unless he has emergency business here," Ladish said.

Throughout the night relief workers searched the waterfront ruins for dead and injured. Whites and negroes carried stretchers—bloody, oil soaked stretchers bearing the dead. Priests, some wearing gas masks as protection from poisonous gases from burning chemical company plants read services for each body as it was brought into the ambulance area. Some of the trucks pulled away with bodies stacked four and five deep.

Scores of bodies are piled on benches and tables in a mid-town garage and in a nearby school gymnasium.

Dozens of embalmers were at work in the garage as people

LAUDS BOOK BY MRS. LEWARS ON THAD. STEVENS

Mrs. Austin Fellenbaum, of Lancaster, who was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Trilogy club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Donald Tyson, near Gardners, reviewed Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars' book, "I Speak for Thaddeus Stevens" which is to be published in May.

Mrs. Fellenbaum prefaced her review by telling of the painstaking research done by the author into the life and times of Thaddeus Stevens "in order that her book might include only authentic and accurate accounts of his life." She then read from galley-proof the first chapter of the book which she felt "might live on as one of the gems of present day literature." In reviewing the remainder of the book, Mrs. Fellenbaum stressed the fact that the author had given an unbiased and well rounded picture of Mr. Stevens' life and that the facts which she had been able to uncover, in many instances contradicted prevailing ideas about phases of his life.

Reads Two Poems
She told of his work "in behalf of the public school system, of the negroes and of other projects contributing to the happiness of his fellow man."

Mrs. Fellenbaum read two poems from a volume of verse by Martha Keller entitled: "Brady's Bend and Other Ballads." The titles of the poems were "Thaddeus Stevens" and "Nee Elizabeth Shenk."

Mrs. Fellenbaum was introduced by Miss Mary Boyer who was in charge of the program for the day.

Mrs. Donald Tyson, the president, presided. She appointed Mrs. Richard C. Walton, Mrs. M. T. Dill and Mrs. William B. Wilson members of a nominating committee to report at the next meeting.

Guests included: Mrs. George Bacon, of Lancaster; Mrs. William Grant and Mrs. S. Townsend Naylor, of Oakland, Md.

The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William M. Lott, Gardners R. D., with Mrs. O. H. Benson and Mrs. Charles Tilton in charge of the program.

SCHOOL HEADS ATTEND DINNER ON WEDNESDAY

School administrators of Adams York and Franklin counties held their annual banquet Wednesday night in the firemen's hall at Thomasville, York county, with several schoolmen from Gettysburg and Adams county in attendance.

A demonstration of college-conducted aptitude tests for veteran and non-veteran students was presented by a group from Franklin and Marshall college. It was under the direction of Prof. Munson of the college, and took the place of the scheduled address by Dr. Theodore A. Distler, president of F. and M., who was unable to be present because of illness.

The students and their director showed how tests for manual skill, reading ability, vision, hearing and intelligence are made and analyzed, to determine the vocational aptitude of a veteran who has never held a job, or the difficulties of a failing (Please turn to Page 2)

Explosions Wreak Death And Destruction In Texas City

This is an aerial view of burning industrial plants at Texas City, Texas, following the worst explosion in Texas Gulf history. Chain of blasts began on the Grandcamp, a French ship loaded with nitrate, and then spread to the multi-million dollar Monsanto Chemical corporation plant. More blasts followed 13 hours later and heavy fires are nearing huge tanks of high octane gasoline.

USSR IS PANEL TOPIC FOR AAUW STUDY GROUP

The conclusion that Russia aims at expansion to a World Soviet Federation with the integration of every country that can be penetrated by Communism was reached by a 12-member panel in a discussion of the USSR at the April meeting of the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

Proposed by the chairman of the legislative committee, Mrs. Donald P. McPherson, Jr., the suggestion received the unanimous endorsement of the group of approximately 40 women in attendance.

The branch voted simply "to try to have a woman elected to the local school board this fall."

The president, Mrs. Forrest Craver, explained that the legislative committee had "no particular person or persons in mind" as potential school directors but was simply asking endorsement of the "principle."

Mrs. McPherson said her committee felt that a Gettysburg woman who is a mother could aid the present board of directors, could help improve the schools of the town and could introduce a new point of view and new interest in school affairs here.

Confident of Success

She reminded the women that school directors serve without pay and "often have a great deal of criticism to endure."

There were no dissenting voices in the brief discussion. One member liked the idea of having a

Local University Women Start Campaign To Elect Mother To School Board

The Gettysburg branch of the American Association of University Women launched a campaign at a regular meeting here Wednesday evening for the election of a Gettysburg mother to the local school board.

Proposed by the chairman of the legislative committee, Mrs. Donald P. McPherson, Jr., the suggestion received the unanimous endorsement of the group of approximately 40 women in attendance.

The branch voted simply "to try to have a woman elected to the local school board this fall."

Blast-Stricken Texas City Is Compared With War-Bombed Ploesti, Rumanian Oil Center

(Editor's Note: The following eyewitness account of the scene in Texas City, Tex., stricken by a series of blasts and oil fires was written by Hal Boyle, Pulitzer prize-winning Associated Press staff correspondent. As a war correspondent, Boyle served on all of the active fronts in World War II.)

By HAL BOYLE

Over Texas City, Tex., April 17 (AP)—In four years of war coverage I have seen no concentrated devastation so utter, except Nagasaki, Japan, victim of the second atom bomb, as presented today by flaming Texas City.

The damage along the waterfront of Texas City exceeds in intensity that inflicted on Bari, Italy, in the fall of 1943 when German bombers hit that port and 17 vessels went up in flames, including three ammunition ships whose titanic explosions killed hundreds of American troops and Italian civilians.

From the air the burning industrial port looks like a peace-time parallel to war-bombed Ploesti, Rumanian oil capital.

FBI AGENT IS LITTLESTOWN CLUB SPEAKER

Joseph R. McFadden, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation from the Philadelphia office, was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Woman's Community club of Littlestown and vicinity, on Wednesday evening, in the P. O. S. of A. hall. He spoke on "Cooperative Functions of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

He told of the many uses of fingerprinting, including the identification of amnesia victims and of unknown dead persons, as well as routine uses in crime investigations. All fingerprint cards are now on file in Washington. When Congress passed a law in 1926 centering activities in the capital, there were 800,000 cards on file; there are now over 103,000,000. He told of the classification of fingerprints, and said no two are alike.

The speaker also devoted some time to the subject of juvenile delinquency. He believes that it starts in the home. In 1946 there were 645,000 arrests made in the United States, of which a great percentage were juveniles. Every attempt is made to rehabilitate juvenile delinquents, he said. Following his talk, Mr. McFadden answered questions asked by the ladies.

TWO INJURED, BOY SERIOUSLY, IN ACCIDENTS

Two persons, one a six-year-old boy, were injured Wednesday afternoon in accidents on Adams county roads.

Most seriously injured was the six-year-old, Lawrence Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, Hanover R. 4, who suffered a concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull when he was struck by a Houck's bakery truck one and a half miles west of McSherrystown on the Hanover-Gettysburg road at 3:55 o'clock.

The other person injured was Mrs. Mae Geuther, Waymart R. 1, who suffered a contusion of the right forearm and abrasions of the left knee in an accident approximately two miles south of here near the Lee-Meade Inn on the Emmitsburg road at 3:55 o'clock.

Driver From Hanover
State police said today that the truck which struck the Miller youngster was being driven by David F. Pennewill, 44, Hanover, and was proceeding toward McSherrystown.

Pennewill was on his way home after making his usual deliveries when, according to police, the Miller youngster, after alighting from a car near his home, ran across the road into the path of the truck. The left front headlight and fender of the truck struck the youngster.

The Miller boy was with a group of children returning from the parochial school at McSherrystown in a car driven by Francis Murren, Hanover R. 4. Murren stopped to permit the Miller child to get out and then had pulled on a little distance when the sound of the brakes of the bakery truck caused him to halt. He took the youngster to the Hanover hospital, where the boy was said to be still in a semi-conscious condition today. State police have filed no charges in the crash.

Turning Into Inn

The other auto accident occurred, police say, when J. J. Geuther, husband of the woman who was injured, attempted to turn left into the Lee-Meade Inn from the Emmitsburg road. He was driving north at the time.

Donald Francis Topper, 120 DePaul street, Emmitsburg, who was headed south, saw Geuther attempt the left turn and decided to pass around him, cutting also to the left. Geuther, seeing the other car approach, tried to straighten out his vehicle and the two collided. Damage totaled about $300.

PENSION PLAN FOR EMPLOYEES OF BANKS URGED

"Establishment of a pension plan for bank employees is a sound business principle," John W. Clegg, Jr., trust officer of the Pennsylvania Company for Banking and Trusts, told 30 members of the Adams County Bankers Association Wednesday evening at their regular monthly dinner meeting in the Hotel Gettysburg.

"A pension plan," he added, "assures the security of the individual employee, assures the young employee of advancement before too many years and as a result will attract better men to banking."

"Because of the high cost of consultants for instituting pension plans the Pennsylvania company has inaugurated a cooperative system whereby the cost for the consultants is spread over a large number of banks," Clegg said.

Low Salary Costs

"A pension system," he added, "eventually leads to lower salary costs to the bank. You will find that eventually the cost of salaries and pension will be less than the cost of salaries now, because the plan will (Please Turn To Page Two)

So far $12,351.46 of the quota of $12,440 has been subscribed, the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, chairman of the drive announced.

Gettysburg donors have given nearly $4,000 or about one-third of the total secured from the county a breakdown of receipts by districts showed. A total of $3,981.30 has been donated so far by Gettysburg residents. The amount is over $1,000 more than the second highest district, Upper Adams county, which has given $2,681.86 so far.

The Gettysburg total is divided into precincts, business district, clubs and organizations. The second ward gave the most among the Gettysburg sections, a total of $1,388. The business district was next with $1,058.65.

100F TO MARK
ANNIVERSARY

In observance of the founding of Odd Fellowship in the United States, Druid C. Deitch, chairman of the anniversary committee of Gettys lodge No. 124, announced at a lodge meeting Tuesday night that the members of all branches of the order and the Rebekah degree have been invited to attend the evening services in the Presbyterian church on April 27. The anniversary of the founding is April 26.

A special feature of the service will be a concert to be given by the American Car and Foundry glee club. The Presbyterian and Methodist churches are uniting for their Sunday evening services during the spring months.

George W. Thompson, formerly of Gettysburg, and a member of Harrisburg Lodge No. 68, IOOF, paid a fraternal visit to Gettys lodge Tuesday night.

Mr. Thompson was employed on the engineering force of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways in Adams county when the offices were located in the A. B. Plank building on Baltimore street.

He was a frequent visitor at the sessions of the local lodge while a resident here. He served as a baseball umpire when the town league played twilight games on the playground diamond. Mr. Thompson has been continuously in the employ of the highway department for 32 years and eight months. He will retire next week.

tend to keep men in the business longer, will attract a better type of man, will keep the organization young and will remove from a salary list what actually are hidden pensions to older employees at present. Those banks which retain employees beyond retirement age would cease to pay those salaries if the men were pensioned and would not have that expense because the cost of the pension would have been paid over a period of years while the employee's productive capacity was at its height.

Harry Lauer, assistant to the vice president of the Pennsylvania company, told the group that he believes if a permissive bill allowing banks to be closed on Saturday passes the legislature the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh banks will be closed on Saturdays. He asked for "sympathy" from the smaller banks who will probably remain open Saturday in pointing out the personnel problem of city banks in working a 5 1/2 day week.

Debate Daylight Time

A lengthy discussion on daylight saving time led to the conclusion that the various bank officials will check their boards of directors on daylight time the coming week and then report to the executive board of the county bankers. Most of the bankers present said they thought their banks will "go along" with the community in which they are located.

The banks however are to report their final decisions to Elmer W. Warren, trust officer of The First National Bank here and chairman of the executive committee of the bankers.

President Arnold Orner presided at the meeting.

TB SOCIETY TO MEET

The annual meeting of the Adams County Tuberculosis society will be held at the Red Cross office at 8 o'clock on the evening of April 21. Officers will be elected for the coming year, a budget will be adopted and reports of activities for the past year will be presented.

"If we work in the right way, it can be done," one member asserted.

Mrs. McPherson said she understood three directors are to be elected this fall.

Favor Equal Pay Bill

Earlier in the report for her committee, Mrs. McPherson announced that county representatives at Harrisburg had been notified the branch favors passage of the equal pay bill for women. Assemblyman Francis Worley responded to the committee's letter with a promise of support of the bill. Mrs. McPherson also announced the chapter's executive committee had, since the last general meeting, gone on record as favoring the teacher pay bill 417 and had sent appropriate resolutions to the proper persons.

The committee also is seeking national AAUW support for the public library service demonstration bill now pending in Congress. Mrs. McPherson read a letter from a national officer promising prompt consideration of the Gettysburg chapter's suggestion.

Other brief committee reports were given by Mrs. P. J. McGlynn, membership chairman, who said the chapter now has 65 members. At her request the chapter adopted a policy on dues of transfer members.

The local chapter voted a contribution of $1 per member to the fellowship fund.

may flame up momentarily. Many of the tanks have been so badly battered by the blast that they look like tin cans crushed by children in a game of street hockey.

Waterfront In Ruins

Our plane circles low toward the devastated area, keeping just far enough away so that if a tank blows up its blast won't sweep our craft down.

The waterfront area is a charred ruins. Only remnants remain of the Monsanto chemical plant that went up after the nitrate-loaded French vessel Grandcamp exploded yesterday morning.

White pillars sticking up from the ghastly wreckage bear a startling resemblance to row after row of military graves. And many do mark the death agony of scores of men whose bodies can never be recovered.

A light wind ripples the muddy waters of Galveston Bay, but there is no trace of the Grandcamp or the High Flyer, a second nitrate-carrying vessel that exploded early this morning.

The waves have swallowed ships, cargo and crewmen completely.

Moscow, April 17 (AP)—The Council of Foreign Ministers failed tonight to break a deadlock over re-transfer of displaced persons from Austria. The United States, Britain and France refused to accept a Soviet demand that these persons be expelled within six months from the date the Austrian treaty takes effect.

Washington, April 17 (AP)—John L. Lewis declared today that Secretary of Interior Krug uttered "a falsehood" in charging the United Mine Workers with a lack of cooperation in the coal mine safety measures.

Cape May, N. J., April 17 (AP)—The 185-foot motor tug Great Isaac sank today off Barnegat lightship following a collision with the Norwegian freighter Bandirante in fog-shrouded seas. A Coast Guard Control officer here said the 10-man crew of the tug was transferred to the Bandirante during the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seymour, Gettysburg R. D. 5, announce the birth of a daughter, born at the Hanover hospital Tuesday.

A Great Bunch
—Those Ex-G.I.'s

Willie Wells and a bunch of the boys from our town went to Pound Ridge Saturday to a reunion of their old regiment.

There were about two hundred and fifty boys who came from miles around to a good old feast in Farmer Collins' barn. I expect they seemed a lot different to each other out of uniform. But they had a great time, spinning yarns, drinking beer, and talking over the old times in South Africa and Italy and the Aleutians.

I went over to cover the meeting for the Clarion, and one thing that sure impressed me was the good behavior of those boys—their preference for a moderate beverage like beer—their friendly spirit.

From where I sit, our ex-G.I.'s are making as good a showing in peacetime as they made during the war. And they're setting a mighty good example to the rest of us—in tolerance, and moderation, and good fellowship.

Police Warn Against Looting

Police cars with public address systems broadcast instructions to rescue crews, warning against looting and smoking and calling for "blankets, sheets, coverages."

A fire aboard the French freighter Grandcamp which was taking on a load of nitrates at Pier Two touched off the chain of waterfront explosions yesterday.

W. H. Waring, vice president of the Texas City Terminal Railway company, who had left the Grandcamp five minutes before she blew up, said the fire was discovered aboard the ship early in the morning.

Firemen fought the blaze with water and steam, but were unable to get it under control. Waring said. It was decided to tow the vessel out into the bay, but before the ship could be gotten away from her berth, she suddenly blew up. That was at 9:12 a. m.

Other Blasts Follow In Few Seconds

Seconds later terrific explosions wrecked the Monsanto Chemical company's plant, 700 feet to the north, and the nearby Stone Oil company's refinery.

J. K. Poage, engineer of radio station KTRH, who was about 25 miles away from the waterfront said he saw a flame shoot high into the sky and disappear after a few seconds. It was followed by a big column of smoke shaped like a toad stool. Some persons said they saw a ball of fire that seemed to hang in the sky a minute or more after the chemical plant exploded.

Buildings were damaged in Galveston, 12 miles away, on the other side of the bay. The shock of the concussion was felt in Palestine, Texas, 150 miles away and in Port Arthur and Orange, 100 miles away.

Hundreds of people had been attracted to the waterfront by the fire aboard the Grandcamp. The death toll among these people and workmen in the two plants was heavy.

Stone Buildings Are Leveled

The scene in Texas City was one of chaos. The concussion

GHS 9 MEETS SHIPPENSBURG HERE FRIDAY

Baseball returns to Gettysburg high school as a varsity sport for the first time since 1936 when the Maroons meet Shippensburg high school on the local field Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Although Coach Howard Shoemaker is hopeful for a successful campaign prospects are not too bright inasmuch as many of the squad members will be participating in their first baseball game.

At present the squad consists of 23 players, nine of whom are freshmen, six sophomores, three juniors and five seniors.

Squad Members
Squad members are: Seniors—Donald Bucher, Jay Hershey, Joe Hess, James Leech and Dale Sheffer; Juniors—John Benner, Reginald Dunkinson, William McKenney; Sophomores—William Bushman, Robert Dornberg, William Eisenhart, Eugene Kane, Richard Knox, and Ronald Kump; Freshmen—James Bieseker, Kenneth Bieseker, Bill Bucher, Chester Cornwell, Charles Kitzmiller, James Kump, Harold Mellan, Ivan Riggeal and Robert Sachs.

Coach Shoemaker has nominated a brother-act to serve as the opening battery. Donald Bucher will start on the mound with his brother William, catching.

The remainder of the probable starting lineup includes Joe Hess, first base; Dale Sheffer, second base; Jay Hershey, shortstop; Kenny Bieseker, third base; Jim Leech or John Benner, left field; Ronald Kump, center field, and William Eisenhart, right field.

Five lettersmen are included on Shippensburg's 26-man squad. They include John Fogelsanger and Wayne Smith, pitchers; Jim Wright, third base; Don Shoap, shortstop, and Max Angle, catcher.

League Inaugural
Friday's contest will serve as the inaugural for the recently organized South Penn Interscholastic League. Other members are Chambersburg and Hanover, both undefeated to date.

Despite considerable work on the playing field, the condition of the diamond is none too good due to its long period of idleness. The infield has been cut down nearly a foot by a grader. At present there is no screen to protect the spectators.

Bleachers will be erected along the first base line. Admission will be 35c.

Collegeville, Pa., April 17 (P)—Kuhrt Wieneke former Norristown and Phoenixville (Pa.) high school football coach, is Ursinus college's new head grid coach. Wieneke, who served as a field director of the American Red Cross in the European Theater during the war, succeeds Pete Stevens. Stevens resigned to accept a position as backfield coach at Temple University.

Philadelphia, April 17 (P)—Joe Dickerson, former University of Pennsylvania guard, has been signed by the Philadelphia Eagles of National Football league. Dickerson played guard for Penn in 1944, 1945 and 1946.

London, April 17 (P)—Invitations are now sent to the countries of the world, with the exception of Russia, Germany and Japan to participate in the 1948 olympics, the British organizing committee for the game announced today.

Russia has applied for affiliation to various international sporting bodies, and when favorable consideration has been given to these applications she will be in a position to form a National Olympic committee. It is this body in each country which technically receives an invitation, the British committee said.

New York, April 17 (P)—With the defending champion Montreal Royals tabbed the team to beat, the International Baseball league opens its 64th consecutive season today with some 60,000 fans expected to witness the inaugurals.

Boston, April 17 (P)—A group of at least 100 Boston negroes will sit near the Brooklyn Dodgers' dugout at Braves field Sunday to welcome Jackie Robinson, the only member of their race in the major leagues.

Boston, April 17 (P)—Bob Murphy whose baseball guild apparently blew up after last season's near strike at Pittsburgh and later concessions, by magnates as to pensions, minimum salaries and other points, now is busy at one race track at least.

The former field examiner for the National Labor Relations board, who insists he has not given up his baseball or hockey organizing, says he has fled unfair labor practice charges against Suffolk Downs which opens its spring meeting tomorrow.

To this a track spokesman reports that Suffolk already has an agreement with a mutual clerk's union and that Murphy's "reported action is taken to embarrass the management on the eve of its opening."

Fulks And Musi Put Warriors In Lead

Philadelphia, April 17 (P)—The one-two scoring punch of Joe Fulks and Angi Musi had the Philadelphia Warriors one up on the Chicago Stags today as the two quintets prepared for the second contest of the Basketball Association of America final playoff series tonight.

The fabulous Fulks scored 37 points, 29 of them in a blistering second half Warrior onslaught last night as the Philadelphiaans waltzed to an 84 to 71 decision over the Stags. It was only the second time in seven starts this year the Warriors were able to top the windy city five.

By scoring 21 points in the final period—eight field goals in nine tries—and five straight fouls, Fulks equalled the league scoring record for one stanza. He also tied the arena scoring mark of 37 points in one game.

New York, April 17 (P)—As a result of the liner Queen Elizabeth getting stuck in the mud, the U. S. Walker cup golf team will be delayed a day in getting off for England.

Which recalls the capsule report on Tuesday's big news from Britain: "The Queen Liz was pulled out of the mud and Bruce Woodcock was knocked into it." . . . The Athletics, who expanded their farm system from three to 12 clubs this year, are having plenty of trouble stocking them. Report from one farm's training camp is: "We're getting a good look at some of the nation's worst baseball talent here."

Dorsett (Tubby) Graves, long-time Washington baseball coach and now a member of the University athletic executive staff, has been appointed associate steward for the summer race meet at the Longacres track. Wonder how the N.C.A.A. "purists" look at that?

Tulane's gaudy red brick and white tile football stadium (known as the Sugar bowl at certain times) has been made into a showplace with brilliant searchlights turned on it to display the unusual exterior decoration. . . . The stadium is lit every night—in contrast to football fans who are lit only on Saturday afternoons.

Western Maryland Shows Big Gain

The Western Maryland railway which operates through Adams county is in good shape financially according to a report on its operating revenues for the first quarter of the year.

For the three months the company grossed $10,135,000 in revenue, an increase of $1,920,000 or 23 per cent over the same months last year. Largest increase was in the miscellaneous freight revenues which rose 41 per cent to $4,743,000 from $3,369,513 for the quarter last year. Coal and coke freight receipts, around $4,943,000, rose $596,000 or 14 per cent over the 1946 amount.

Indications are that Western Maryland will show a net income of well over $1,000,000 for the first quarter after taxes and charges. This will compare with a net of $765,679 for the 1946 period.

CARDINALS NIP REDS IN LONE MAJOR CONTEST

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Stan Musial's batting lessons to Marty Marion have paid off with the first St. Louis Cardinals victory of the season.

Coming up in the eighth inning of yesterday's only big league game, with the world champs sporting a slender 2-1 advantage over Cincinnati, Marion poled a two-run homer that assured George (Red) Munger of his first win.

There have been years when Marion failed to hit a single homer in an entire campaign and he has hit only 17 out of the park in seven years. Last year his average slumped way off to .233 and there were stories that Mr. Shortstop was on the down-grade.

One day while Marion was taking batting practice in Florida, Musial, the 1946 batting king and most valuable player in the National league, caught a flaw in his stance.

Alters Stance
"I think you would get a little more power if you didn't take such a wide stance," Musial advised his teammate. "I don't want you to think I'm butting in but it's a little trick that has helped me."

Mr. Shortstop took the advice to heart, changed his stance and started hitting with more authority. Now he's aiming for the fences.

George Munger allowed eight Cincy hits but scattered them to earn the first decision of what Manager Eddie Dyer predicts will be a 20-win season.

All other games in both major leagues were postponed because of bad weather.

BULLET NINE FACES 2 TILTS

A busy week-end faces the Gettysburg college baseball team with games scheduled for Friday and Saturday afternoons.

On Friday the Bullets meet Westminster Maryland on Nixon field at 3 o'clock. The game was postponed from Wednesday because of rain.

Muhlenberg will be met by the Plankmen at Allentown Saturday afternoon.

Coach Plank plans to start Ken Houtz on the mound against the Terrors while his selection for Saturday will depend largely on the outcome of Friday's contest.

Injured Soldier May Leave Hospital Soon

Carlisle, Pa., April 17 (P)—Pvt. Anthony J. Kupko, 19, attached to the Army Air Force at Bolling Field, Washington, who was injured in an accident, probably will be discharged from the Army Carlisle barracks hospital within a day or so, the public relations office said today.

Kupko told hospital officials that he was walking along the Pennsylvania turnpike near Bedford on Monday when he "was hit by something," knocking him unconscious. He said he did not know what hit him.

The soldier, who suffered a head injury, was taken to the Bedford hospital and then removed to the Army hospital here.

BAD JOKE, MAYBE

New York, April 17 (P)—Radio comedian Joe Laurie, 52, and a friend, Clarence A. (Chuck) Cohen, also 52, of Tucson, Ariz., were beaten by two men early today in what police said apparently was an unprovoked attack. Six stitches were taken in Laurie's scalp at Polyclinic hospital. Cohen was treated for minor cuts.

It is estimated that about 30 per cent of all heat loss from homes in winter is through the windows.

Grid Star Injured In Rescue Work

Texas City, Tex., April 17 (P)—Windell Williams, Rice Institute's All-Southwest conference end last season, was injured early today while engaged in rescue work.

The 24-year-old athlete, assisting in clearing wreckage at the explosion scene, attempted to duck under an automobile as the SS High Flyer exploded but was struck by a piece of debris.

MACK LAUDS FERRIS FAIN

New York, April 17 (P)—That perennially optimistic old gentleman, Connie Mack, declared today that his Philadelphia Athletics had better watch out, or a certain rookie named Ferris Fain will make them all look bad.

The 84-year-old owner-manager of the Athletics was still expressing pleasure over the way his cellar-predicted club bowled over the New York Yankees on opening day, but it was no easy matter to determine whether he was happier about that victory or about first baseman Fain.

"Why, he goes clean over to second base to field a ball," said the man who groomed such star first sacker as Jimmy Fox and Stuffy McInnis "and if the pitcher isn't fast running over to cover the bag—look out!"

"And on bunts—my!" Mack declared. "One day he charged in to the third base line to pick one up. He might not always get it, but no one can accuse him of being afraid of the ball."

Fain, a 25-year-old former army staff sergeant, made his major league debut against the Yanks Tuesday and on his initial time at bat he pulled the ball high and far into right but it dropped into a fielder's glove just before reaching the fence. In subsequent trips to the plate, Fain walked, struck out, bunted safely and grounded out—not an imposing record, but Mack said that Fain has the makings of a great hitter.

FURTHER DELAY IN PHONE STRIKE

Washington, April 17 (P)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach and his top conciliators indicated today they will hold off another 24 hours before making any new move to end the telephone strike.

"We'll see what develops from the company and union first," said one key figure in the federal efforts to unsnarl the nationwide tie-up, now in its eleventh day.

Both the striking National Federation of telephone workers and the American Telephone and Telegraph company—parent of the Bell system—held aloof from Schwellenbach's plan for arbitrating the scores of local issues and ten basic demands which led to the strike.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Independent NFW, said in a broadcast last night the union turned the plan down because it was "so loosely written that it was possible to interpret it in a dozen different ways."

The A. T. & T. insisted it accepted the proposal "in principle," but it tacked on 13 modifications which the secretary interpreted as a rejection. If accepted, the plan would have ended the strike at 5 p.m., today, after 48 hours of "intense" negotiations on issues which were to have been excluded from arbitration.

N.J. Phone Dispute Has Bugged Down

Newark, N. J., April 17 (P)—New Jersey's telephone dispute was bogged down today in the "status quo" stage ordered by the federal court while union officials pondered a proposal to enter into state-ordered arbitration.

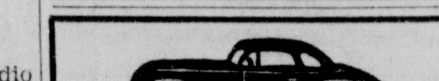

Union counsel Henry Mayer said that the strikers would inform Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of their decision tomorrow—one day before the deadline set for the appointment of a five-member arbitration board under the state's disputed anti-utility strike law.

Mayer said he had advised the

CANARY STARS CLEARED AFTER INVESTIGATION

Harrisburg, Pa., April 17 (P)—R. B. Stapleton, of Tamaqua, president of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association and chairman of the Association's District No. 11 committee, today said "a careful and thorough" investigation has failed to disclose any evidence that Allentown high school, during its 1946-47 basketball season, permitted the participation of players ineligible under PIAA rules.

The investigation, which has extended over a period of six weeks, was made after officials of the Hazleton high school had informally questioned the status of William Wanish and William Elmo Jackson, star players of the Allentown team which won the PIAA Class A state basketball championship.

Stapleton, in a statement reviewing the controversy over the eligibility of the two Allentown players, said a comprehensive examination of all available data has established conclusively that Wanish and Jackson, over their entire high school athletic careers, were within the PIAA age limits and did not participate in more than the maximum number of sport seasons permitted by the Association's rules. He also stated that a scrutiny of the Allentown High school records further reveals that the boys did not attend more than eight semesters of school beyond the eighth grade.

District Chairman Stapleton said the investigation had been made at the direction of his group, despite the fact that no formal protest against the eligibility of either Jackson or Wanish had been filed. He said that, in the absence of a formal protest or the submission of any tangible proof to support ineligibility allegations, the District committee regards the incident closed.

Expect Okay On New Borough Code

Harrisburg, April 17 (P)—Chairman Howard F. Boorze (R-Montgomery) said today he anticipated the house municipal government committee will approve for initial floor action next week legislation streamlining the borough code.

The State association of boroughs joined with individuals in testifying in favor of the bill at a public hearing yesterday.

The measure would modernize archaic provisions of the present code and otherwise codify state laws affecting Pennsylvania's 934 boroughs.

Meanwhile, the Senate local government committee postponed until April 30 a hearing on a House-passed bill authorizing third class cities to adopt their own form of government. The hearing had previously been fixed for April 23.

Helicopter Takes Aid To Hurt Pilot

Manila, April 17 (P)—A U. S. 13th Airforce helicopter buffeted by high winds succeeded today in bringing medical aid to the injured pilot of a liaison plane which crashed in the Sierra Madre mountains April 7.

The helicopter pilot, 1st Lt. William Bailey of Fort Worth, radioed a C-46 transport circling overhead that 1st Lt. Stanley Hillock of Los Angeles was expected to recover. VFW INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

The New Oxford Post, No. 8728, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held its regular meeting Monday with 32 members present. Commander William G. Weaver, presided.

The primary purpose of the meeting was the installation of the previously-elected post officers. The inauguration was presided over by Ralph D. Stambaugh with Harry Myers acting as his aide de camp. Both are from the Hanover post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The officers present for the inauguration ceremony were as follows: Post Commander, William G. Weaver; senior vice commander, William D. Stock, Jr.; vice commander, Robert Hockensmith; quartermaster, Charles Brashears; chaplain, Bernard Moore, and adjutant, Bernard J. Weaver.

Other business was the acceptance of three new members, John R. Herman, New Oxford; John Weaver, Bonneauville, and Robert D. Smith, New Oxford, R. D., bringing the post's membership up to 73.

It was decided to take action to secure proper authorization for the formation of a home association in conjunction with the post's plans for building a post home.

The post will take part in the Memorial Day exercises. A firing squad, a color guard, and a marching team are being formed to take part in the ceremonies.

A discussion was held concerning the sale of poppies in this area and the enlisting of aid of other organizations and business establishments to help in the selling of poppies. The funds derived from these sales are appropriated for the maintenance and welfare of disabled veterans and their homes.

The next regular meeting will be held April 28.

DOG CATCHER DELUXE

Lower Merion, Pa., April 17 (P)—Police officials are inaugurating what they believe is the nation's two-way dog catcher system. Beginning today, Partolman John Scott really goes to the dogs. Scott will be equipped with a high-powered two-way radio that will enable him to speed to the scene as soon as dogs begin to threaten human beings—or vice versa.

OBSERVER SAYS PEACE MISLAID BUT NOT LOST

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

It takes something akin to chronic optimism to enable one to view the Moscow conference in any other way than "through a glass, darkly."

Still, speaking as one who has his pessimistic times, it strikes me that this shouldn't be allowed to become a moment of despair. Peace certainly has been mislaid, but it isn't necessarily lost irretrievably. There's a chance—perhaps with the odds against it—that the latest developments may mark the extreme swing of the pendulum toward disaster and that the return-swing may set in.

One gets encouragement for this viewpoint from a statement in the Senate yesterday by Senator Vandenberg, chairman of the foreign affairs committee. After saying that the only hope for peaceful agreement with Russia is to make it plain to her that "there is a deadline of ideals beyond which we will not retreat," he expressed the belief that there is a chance for the United States and Russia to find a basis "upon which to live and let live in this world."

Much—indeed, perhaps everything—depends on the ultimate reaction which may be produced by that private ninety-minute talk Tuesday night between Premier Stalin and General Marshall. If we could have lifted the roof of the Kremlin and listened in, we should be in better position to judge how the battle goes.

So far as concerns the parley of the Big Four foreign ministers, it has encountered nothing but grief in attempts to write a German treaty—the most important step in the reconstruction of peace. Over the tortuous road of failure the conferees finally arrived at the American-sponsored plan for a forty-year, four-power pact to keep Germany disarmed. This disarmament was the one thing on which all had agreed at the outset—but the proposal flopped.

John Hightower, AP correspondent with the U. S. delegation, reported that one high American source said it was "the most depressing development in international relations since the end of the war. Secretary Marshall bitterly blamed failure on Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov."

Then came the long-awaited meeting between Generalissimo Stalin and General Marshall—two of the outstanding figures of our time, and both capable of being hard as nails. Hightower tells us that there was no doubt among those familiar with the Secretary's plans that he probably had a "brass tacks talk" with Stalin, emphasizing the seriousness with which the United States views the present world

ADVENTURERS ALL!

The spirit of adventure is born into every healthy human being. The curiosity of the child leads it into adventures all day long, without even suspecting until later in life, that it all was adventuring. The pioneer, who in the early days struck into the wilderness and established his pioneer home, did so because he was full of adventure.

If we got rid of this spirit of adventure within us we would instantly kill all incentive to achieve. This Western World was discovered and developed by adventurers. The thrill of discovery is what gives courage, and he will go on, accomplishing more and more. We are Adventurers All!

Every idea has for its legs those of adventure. Adventure takes us away from the usual and instills our curiosity with enthusiasm, leading us to discoveries and the opening up of mysteries. It's what gives zest to life. The adventurer will endure, gladly, privation, hunger, and exhaustion. He is never sure of his ultimate triumph, and so he is driven on and on by his adventurous spirit.

The very uncertainty of things intrigues most people. Every business man is an adventurer, dreaming of new worlds to conquer. Youth, of course, is the great adventure time, but adventure is confined to no one man or age, as Ulysses has well stated—adventuring on and on—to new scenes, new lands, and new experiences, even beyond the horizon!

Those early men who went to the far West and into Alaska, with the hope of gold discovery, were as much fed by the idea of adventure as they were with the hope of wealth. All too many of them got nothing more than the adventure. But I know of several authors who got their gold from the books that they later wrote, and I know of one who became a great surgeon out of his adventure in Alaska as a miner. We never know just where our adventures are to lead us. But that is where the thrill comes in! We are thus enabled to discover ourselves. Nothing ventured, as the saying goes, nothing gained. Try anything, if it inspires you, but stick to the thing that promises most in personal joy and usefulness.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Accomplishment And Endurance."

SECOND BIRTHDAY
Two years old! and may I be Here to shout when she is three.
Then I'll ask for one year more,
Just to see her smile at four.
Eager still, I'd stay alive
To behold her when she's five.
After five, with all its tricks,
I shall want to wait for six;
Then postpone the joys of Heaven
To be here when she is seven.
Still unsatisfied, I'll pray
'Til she's eight on earth to stay,
Hoping God will grant me then
Time and health for nine and ten;
Not contented, I'll have seen
Little Jane as sweet sixteen.

URGES EFFORTS TO LEARN BASIC ATOMIC FACTS

Philadelphia, April 17 (AP)—Unceasing efforts to "uncover basic principles of atomic energy" have been urged by Dr. Enrico Fermi, renowned University of Chicago physicist, whose studies of the neutron were vital in the work of re-leasing nuclear energy.

Dr. Fermi, Nobel prize winner in physics in 1938, was awarded the Franklin medal, highest award of the Franklin Institute, here last night, for his work in nuclear physics.

He asserted that it would be shortsighted to take the view that "only our partial understanding of the phenomena of the atomic nucleus is adequate."

Laws Yet Unknown

Dr. Fermi, to whom much of what science knows about atomic energy is attributed, said scientists still do not know the laws governing forces between neutrons and protons in the nucleus.

Sir Robert Robinson, a native of Chesterfield, England, and another Franklin medal recipient, expressed belief that in the field of organic chemistry the work of independent pioneers is essential, and cited the current problem of producing synthetic penicillin in large amounts.

Sir Robert, widely regarded as one of the world leaders in organic chemistry and one of the greatest and most versatile investigators in this field, was awarded the medal in recognition of his numerous and brilliant researches in organic chemistry.

Other Medalists

Seventeen other scientists received Institute medals. They included: Everett M. Barber of the Texas Company Research Laboratory, Beaconsfield, N. Y., a native of Oil City, Pa., and a graduate of Penn State college; Joseph J. Mitka, Hillwood, Pa.; Edgar Hutton Dix, Jr., of the Aluminum Company of America, New Kensington, Pa.; Dr. Lars Olaf Gronlund, director of research and engineer, Union Switch and Signal company, Pittsburgh; Edward G. Boyer, gas department of the Philadelphia Electric company, a native of Catasauqua, Pa.; Dr. Joseph Razez, Llanerch, Pa.; Dr. Peter Mulder, Letterkenny Ordnance Depot, Chambersburg, Pa.; Dr. George C. Southernworth, of Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York, a native of western Pennsylvania, and Dr. Vladimir Kosma, Zworykin, RCA laboratories division, Princeton, N. J.

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 17 (AP)—Lawrence Tierney, who acted the role of "Dillinger" in the film of that name, has been ordered to spend the next four week-ends in the county jail. LATE CORRECTION

Burbank, Calif., (AP)—It took nearly 25 years, but Burbank has finally corrected the spelling of a street named for a distinguished resident. In 1923 Burbank designed a thoroughfare in honor of former world heavyweight boxing champion James J. Jeffries. But when the street signs appeared, the spelling was "Jefferies."

Jeffries never complained publicly, but he was delighted when in the midst of his 72nd birthday "week" 44 new signs appeared with his name spelled correctly.

New Cab Company To Begin Service Today

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—The newly franchised Peoples Cab Co. announced start of service today in a city left with little taxi service as a result of a seven-day strike by Yellow Cab Co. mechanics.

Meyer Sniderman, attorney for Peoples, said the first five cabs would be put into operation on a 24-hour basis and would be used for hospital emergency calls only.

Fifteen yellow cabs are taking emergency calls on an around-the-clock basis, without charge.

The yellow cab strike which has idled 900 drivers and about 300 cabs started Friday morning when 55 members of the International Association of Machinists (I.M.) quit

Gas Firm To Install FM Radio Stations

PEST COMMUNIQUE

Decatur, Ill. (AP)—Two-faced, all-weather owls are Decatur's latest and most effective weapon against the pestiferous starlings.

Like other cities warring against the birds, Decatur found stuffed owls perched on roof tops were effective but they deteriorated in bad weather.

So Joe Swisher, city pest officer, and his assistant, Jimmie Soules, made 30 two-faced owls of aluminum casts—fronts only—by molding together the cast shells and then touching them up to a natural finish with wool, rayon, paint and glass eyes. They expect to market them in other cities where starlings are a nuisance.

NATURAL GAS IS SOURCE FOR 'GOOD ALCOHOL'

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17 (AP)—More good drinking alcohol can be made from natural gas than all the whiskey, gin and rum consumed by Americans in 1946, a peak year. And the cost would be only about one-fifth that of grain alcohol.

This report was made to the American Chemical society today by Dr. Robert S. Aries, of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

On account of legal restrictions thrown around production of drinking alcohol, Dr. Aries thought that drinking of natural gas alcohol is likely to become a national trait.

Another reason, he said, is that this same natural gas will be considered even more valuable for making synthetic gasoline and some by-products like aspirin, rayons and plastics. Natural gas, he said, is a most flexible raw material for chemical synthesis because it can be converted, economically, into so many useful things.

He predicted that it will take two or more generations to deplete the present known natural gas resources. The first step will be to stop wasting the gas, as at present in some southwestern fields. He said that not until the natural gas is depleted is this nation likely to turn to coal as a source for synthetic gasoline.

Getting ready for the time when shale will supply oil to make American gasoline, the U. S. Bureau of Mines has found a new method of analyzing the rocks to discover how much oil they contain. Petroleum prospecting methods do not work well for shale. The new technique was reported to the American Chemical society by G. U. Dinneen, C. W. Bailey, J. R. Smith and John S. Ball of the bureau.

EX-AIRMAN IN NEW BUSINESS

Harold M. Hoke, former flight engineer on a B-17 in the Pacific, has opened a new hardware store in Emmitsburg.

The store, which is to handle a general line of paints, hardware and sporting goods, is located in the former site of the Martha Brown beauty parlor which has moved temporarily to the former Kathleen beauty shop.

The new hardware merchant is a graduate of Emmitsburg high school and attended the University of Illinois and a business college before enlisting in the army air force at the beginning of World War II.

Hoke served 4½ years in the army, most of the time in the southwest Pacific with the 19th bombardment group.

EMMITSBURG HI SEEKING FIRST VICTORY TODAY

Emmitsburg's high school was to tangle with Thurmont on the Emmitsburg diamond this afternoon in the second game of the season for the home team.

The E-burgians began their season Tuesday as host to Walkersville diamond men and wound up on the short end of a 16 to 6 score. Walkersville took a 4 to 1 lead in the opening inning and was never headed. The visitors scored in every inning except the seventh and every member of the winning squad scored at least one run. Walkersville had 16 runs off eight hits and no errors. Emmitsburg had six runs, eight hits and three errors.

Eight-game Schedule
Playing an eight-game schedule the Emmitsburgites will be host to Frederick next Tuesday; at Thurmont on April 29, at Brunswick May 6; host to Middletown May 13, at Walkersville May 22 and at Middletown May 28, closing date for the Frederick county high school league.

Among the teams competing for the Frederick county title are Frederick, Brunswick, Emmitsburg, Thurmont, Walkersville and Middletown. Because Frederick is in class A and Brunswick in class B the high team among the others will represent the county in inter-section play of the state-wide tourney for smaller secondary schools.

COURT ACTION FLARES AGAIN IN CACHE CASE

Philadelphia, April 17 (AP)—Three joint owners of a Philadelphia milk company have petitioned U. S. District court to strike from records liens filed against them in connection with the $92,800 cache found in a South Philadelphia cellar here last month.

Disclaiming any interest in the treasure found by their employee, Benjamin Lieberman, $75-a-week bookkeeper, William Kodroff, Henry Kodroff and Israel Kodroff, proprietors of the Cooklyn Milk company, filed identical petitions in U. S. District court. They claimed the Internal Revenue bureau's tax liens are "arbitrary, unwarranted, illegal and based on no facts or evidence whatsoever."

The Kodroffs also told the court they have never claimed the money or any part of it and do not know to whom it belongs. Lieberman also has disclaimed knowledge of the money's source.

Liens Placed

Under orders from Revenue Commissioner Joseph D. Numan, Jr., tax liens were placed against the Kodroffs as well as Lieberman and his wife Jessie, and Bernard Yanklovitz, otherwise unidentified. They were given 10 days to pay $18,753 each—a total of $93,765 or $965 more than the amount discovered.

The Kodroffs declared they would have to "liquidate" their milk business to meet the mandate by the expiration date tomorrow. They pointed out that such a move would throw 70 people out of work.

Specifically, in each of their petitions, the Kodroffs asked the court to restrain Collector of Internal Revenue Francis R. Smith, from taking any legal action to enforce collection of the $18,753 from each. They also requested that the liens be stricken from the Federal court and prothonotary's office records.

NEWS EDITORS GATHER TODAY

Washington, April 17 (AP)—The American Society of Newspaper Editors opens a three-day session today, primed for speeches and round-table talks on world freedom of information and recent criticisms of the American press.

Leaders in the diplomatic, military, educational and legislative fields were on the program with prominent publishers and editors. Advance registration lists for the society's 25th annual meeting carried the names of more than 300 editors.

Much of the program was expected to be given over to developments in the organization's drive for world news freedom. The first speaker, Wilbur Forrester, assistant editor of the New York Herald-Tribune and society president, was to deal with this.

It was considered virtually certain that he and others would touch on criticism of the press in a report by the commission on freedom of the press headed by Robert Maynard Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago.

Dean Acheson, Undersecretary of State, will address the editors tomorrow in place of Secretary of State Marshall, who has been detained at the Moscow Foreign Ministers' conference.

PATRONS BACK POSTMISTRESS

Philadelphia, April 17 (AP)—Although Orville M. Hardican, 29-year-old postmistress at nearby Secane, hasn't delivered packages mailed two years ago, she contends the community's residents do not hold it against her.

That's what she told U. S. Commissioner Norman J. Griffin yesterday when she presented a petition she said was signed by 117 of the community's 300 residents asking that she be retained in office.

Griffin commented that the community owed much to her after testimony disclosed she rewrapped packages and paid extra postage from her pocket.

"That's the least they can do for her," he said. Griffin then continued until June 12 hearing of the government's charge of delaying the mail.

Miss Hardican, who is free in $500 bail, said she was too busy to see to it that a number of packages were dispatched to their destination.

Leon Fox, assistant U. S. attorney, told the commissioner "this is hardly an administrative matter" and suggested she resign. Miss Hardican refused, stating she would stay and try to straighten things out.

DANIEL AND THE LION

Colusa, Calif., (AP)—Daniel met a lion yesterday and couldn't understand why circus folk laughed as the lion pawed him.

District Attorney Daniel E. Weyand tripped over a circus stake to which the lion was chained and the lion began pawing his chest.

When the laughing circus workers pulled the lion off, they explained the animal had no teeth. No claws—was just being friendly.

Rescue workers (left) walk amid the blasted automobiles and buildings at Texas City, Texas, where the worst explosion in Texas Gulf Coast history rocked a hundred mile area and virtually razed the city of 15,000 with a heavy loss of life and property damage. About 68 per cent of the 4,200 so-called "company stores" in the United States are operated by coal companies. More than half the nation's 7,000 annual drownings occur between May 1 and August 31. China is three and one-half acres.

New Explosions, Like Sky Rockets, Bring More Damage And Loss Of Life In Texas

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

Texas City, Texas, April 17 (AP)—The new ship explosions today that sharpened the sorrow and misery of this stricken city looked like giant sky rockets, coming as they did 13 hours after twin blasts took hundreds of lives and injured thousands. It further stunned and dazed the weary citizens.

At dawn searchlights still probed crumpled steel and debris that covers uncounted scores of bodies. The blanket of black billowing smoke over the city is heavier than ever, the result of several new oil refinery fires caused by the newest explosions of the vessel High Flyer.

Just after 1 a. m. I walked into a downtown store building where the casualty toll was being tabulated by six men. I closed the door behind me, walked to the center of the big room and a terrific explosion shook the building and brought plaster from the ceiling.

One man dived under a table, another hit the floor, a third rolled up against the front door, blocking it.

Debris Falls Like Rain

Two seconds later came a second thunderous blast. I yanked the door open, pushing the man out of the way and plunged into the street in a vacant lot. I watched red-hot steel streaming into the sky. A fiery black cloud climbed to 2,000 feet. Then steel fragments pinged on the sidewalk and pavement.

In the dock area the jagged pieces were falling like rain.

W. H. Boucher, a volunteer helper from Goose Creek, Texas, was in the danger area, helping to free trapped bodies from debris.

"The blast," he said, "blew the buttons off my jacket. A piece of shrapnel cut the right leg off a man standing right beside me. A Red Cross nurse helped me fix him a tourniquet. Her head was bleeding but she didn't pay any attention to herself. The man was conscious but he didn't say a word. He didn't even moan."

Shortly after the second explosion rescue work got underway, a loudspeaker from the city hall came to life with a man on the microphone profanely urging action. A chorus of wails and patrol cars gurned up the street heading for the waterfront.

Embalmers Resume Work

In seven minutes ambulances had returned, discharging the first casualties in a heavily spotlighted area back of the brick city hall. Two dozen cots soon were filled. Doctors and nurses administered emergency aid and walked between the cots. All the men were conscious, all were silent. Some grimaced with pain.

Mrs. Clay Martin, 36, Houston nurse, went on working in spite of eight broken ribs by jagged shrapnel. All day long she had been in the dock area.

"It rained steel out there," she told me wearily. "It was awful. A man near me got an eye knocked out. Another fellow got a foot cut off. I'm darned lucky to get out with broken ribs."

Rescue workers are back at work in the dock area. Five minutes after today's blasts, embalmers were back at their jobs in a downtown garage building.

The dead lie on benches and tables. They are embalmed, and identifying numbered tags are wired to their toes and then they are carried to the temporary morgue—the high school gymnasium which still contains the wilted decorations of a school party.

Kansas City (AP)—Lt. Roy Wigdon, stationed in Tokyo, Japan, telephoned his wife here yesterday, despite the telephone strike.

Later, Mrs. Wigdon, who is planning to leave next month with their five-month-old son to join her husband, was asked if it was an emergency call.

"In a way it was," she replied. "My husband wanted me to be sure and take the washing machine with me. There are no proper facilities in Tokyo to wash baby diapers."

Chapter 4

Martina had not gone many miles before she began to wish she had taken Aunt Augusta's advice and stayed at home. The road was like a ribbon of glass and even though she reduced her speed to a minimum of fifteen miles an hour she could feel the tires slipping frighteningly. As she neared the city and traffic grew heavier she found her tense nerves increasing. The sight of several cars which had skidded off the side of the road did not add to her courage.

"If I had to put on my brakes suddenly it would be just too bad!" she reflected, and that—at the moment—was exactly what she had to do.

As if from nowhere a car shot out of a side road. Martina automatically jammed on her brakes. The car began to skid and then there was a terrific crash. She felt a scream rise in her throat as a black tide rose up to engulf her.

But only for a moment. Something had hit her a stunning blow, but she soon found that she could untangle herself from the twisted mass of the steering wheel without pain. She managed to get out on the side of the road, her heart thudding with terror. A low moaning sound came from the other car. She made her way toward it. A man was lifting a girl from the front seat. His face was terror-stricken and a long gasp or his forehead sent a crimson stream of blood down one cheek. Martina touched his arm.

"Let me help lift her. Is—she hurt badly?"

She had a confused picture of very black hair and very blue eyes, filled now with agonizing pain. "I—I don't know. I couldn't stop the car at the intersection—"

"I know," Martina's fingers found the girl's wrist. A faint beating rewarded her search. "I—I think she'll be all right. But we should get an ambulance. I'll try to walk to that house over there."

"No—I'd better go if—if you'll stay with Lucy."

He was not gone long, fear lending speed to his feet, and by the time he got back several other cars had piled up in both directions and the passengers were milling about offering help and suggestions. The girl lay deathly still and scarcely seemed to breathe. The man said, "If you want my name and license number—it was all my fault, of course."

"We'll think about that later. The important thing now is to get your—your—Lucy to a hospital."

"My sister."

She smiled a little. "I thought so. You look alike."

The ambulance came and the man turned to Martina, a look of entreaty in his eyes. "I haven't any right to ask it of you—but I'm so—so darn scared! Would you mind coming along with us?"

"Of course I'm coming!" It gave her a warm feeling to know that she was needed in this crisis. She couldn't ever remember that happening before. She felt calm and unafraid now.

The white-coated attendants lifted Lucy gently into the ambulance and Martina and the man climbed in beside her. They sat huddled on the seat beside the cot side by side and he looked so miserable that Martina laid her hand over his cold fingers. "Please, don't worry yet—it may not be serious."

They waited outside the emergency room for what seemed a very long time. Once Holloway rose to walk up and down unsteadily, marking off the tiled blocks in the floor in quick, uneasy steps and again, his face tense with suffering.

"What can they be doing so long, do you suppose?"

"I imagine it's just seems a long time. Actually we've only been here a little while."

He stopped in front of her, his face working painfully. "You know, of course, that I couldn't have gone through this without you?"

"Yes, you could. But I'm glad I've helped."

"I don't even know your name."

"Martina Wayland."

It meant nothing to him. "I'm Dan Holloway," he offered.

She smiled up at him. "Hello, Dan."

"You're swell!" he said fervently.

"Wonder if we could find a cup of coffee somewhere?"

"I think we'd better wait. I have an idea the doctor may be out any moment. Look, Dan,—let's believe, real hard, that Lucy's going to be all right."

He laughed shortly. "Easy enough to say!"

"Lots better than expecting the worst, isn't it?"

The door opened and an interne came out. He spoke with the professional cheerfulness which might mean anything. "We can't tell yet just how seriously your sister is injured. There is a slight concussion and there may be internal injuries. We'll know for certain in an hour or two. In the meantime, we're moving your sister to a private room. So will you please go to the office and give the necessary information? We'll let you know at once when we have anything to report."

"I guess I've got to get word to Mom," Dan said. "She'll be terribly upset about it if I don't—She'd want to be here, of course—"

Martina thought quickly. "If you'll give me the address, I'll go get her in a taxi—or perhaps you'd like me to stay here while you go."

He looked at her curiously. "I don't get it. I run into you, tear up your car, and you stand by like an angel of mercy."

"Maybe I like being needed. Nobody ever needed me before."

"Haven't you got any folks?"

"Oh, yes."

"Then you're kidding yourself about not being needed. And believe me, I've sure cried on your shoulder!"

"I like it. Besides you're not going to get rid of me until I know how Lucy is."

"Nobody wants to get rid of you. You were sent from heaven. And if you will go Mom—here's the address. I'd like to be here if they have anything to report—but I guess I really am just coward enough to want someone else to break it to Mom—"

USSR IS PANEL

tion. "The current international talk of a world state comes handily for the Russians," the panel chairman observed, "for the Russians aim at a world state—with the USSR dominant. The policy of world revolution has been displaced by one of intense nationalism and expansion with no limits placed upon the expansion."

Mrs. E. S. Lewars first gave geographical background for the discussion. She pointed out that Russia includes a sixth of the world's land surface and possesses every type of natural resources in abundance. The USSR has 202 million people of 177 races, 40 religions and 17 republics. In answer to a question she said one hope in the Russian situation may lie in Russia's future inability to hold together such a diversification of peoples.

Literature and Government

Mrs. Kenneth L. Smoke led a discussion of Russian literature. She said 19th century literature there repudiated the supernatural and defied the Russian nationalism. Since the Revolution, she said, the literature reveals the political and social confusion of the nation. A longing for happiness and the success of Russia is reflected and the new nationalism discloses many attitudes like those in the days of the czars.

The machinery of the Soviet government was explained by Mrs. Forrest Craver with the use of charts. She asserted that although every Russian citizen has the right to vote, the theory of representative government is made ineffectual by the overshadowing power of the Communist party with the leadership of Stalin.

Assessing the progress made by Russia under its successive five-year plans, Miss Virginia Troxell said great relative increases have been made in heavy industrial production and added that with its great natural resources that production may

BOYLE BEGS OFF FROM DEEP SEA FISHING JUNKET

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—There is a strange fever this time of year that runs through this city of pent-up millions and seizes more victims than a plague in Cathay.

It is the annual subway circuit urge to go deep sea fishing.

"Let's charter a boat," some busy-body suggests to helpless co-workers in ten thousand skyscraper offices. And straightway the palefaces decide to go down to the sea again—to the lonely sea and the sky that have struggled on without them all winter long.

Two things the Lord never gave me were a rich uncle or a desire to go fishing. I think fishing is calm, healthy, harmless and fine exercise. I like fishermen too. I will listen to them tell tall tales for hours and never doubt a word.

Happens Every Year
But I have no desire to go fishing with them. And that brings up the only thing wrong with all the fishermen I know: sooner or later they invite me to come along. They love to inflict their sport on unbelievers. And you can't escape them.

So I know that some balmy morning I will have to submerge out to Sheephead bay or catch a fisherman's special on the Long Island railroad and clamber aboard a rolling boat with a couple dozen other dime store whalers.

It happens every year when German submarines aren't off the coast.

The last time I was trapped into a fishing expedition I didn't get seasick for fifteen minutes—par for Sheephead bay. The small sailing craft didn't smash through the waves like a sensible ship. It rolled and wallowed, pitched and bobbed, rocking like an uneven playground swing.

Envied The Fish
"What you need is something on your stomach," said a nature lover. He handed me a glass of warm sudsy beer and a mushy ham sandwich with pickle. That finished what the boat had begun.

The rest of the day I spent swallowing my stomach as it shuddered up and down my spinal column like a jerry elevator. U-u-u-p, down; u-u-u-p, down; u-u-u-p, down—w-w-w-n! Beneath the troubled surface the fish swam about unseen, serene, peaceful. I envied them as I dropped my baited hook into their twilight world. I would gladly have bitten on a hook myself if somebody would just let me down gently over the side and never haul me back into that boat.

Feeding Marine Life
"Look! You got two fish caught on one hook!" said one fisherman at midday. "Some fishing, boy!"

"Wonderful," I agreed, straightening up from the other side of the boat where I had been feeding marine life free for fifteen minutes.

When it came time to go home there were at least two dozen fish aboard. The fishermen started to toss them away. I objected.

"I don't eat the darn things," said one man. "I just like to kill them in."

Six Days Of Fish
So two hours later I staggered up my home stairs—sun-blistered, exhausted—carrying the entire catch in a wet gunny sack.

"Didn't you leave any in the ocean for next week?" asked my sympathetic wife.

For six days running she served me fish—baked fish, fried fish, broiled fish, stewed fish. I was beginning to breathe through my ears in the bath. Cats rubbed up against me on the street and howled outside our windows at night. The neighbors suggested we take an apartment in the Fulton fish market.

Please don't anybody invite me to go deep sea fishing this year.

Religion in Russia was described by Mrs. Sheldon Ackley. She said the corruption of the Czarist-controlled church may account for some of the attacks upon religion since the Revolution. Communists early set about to destroy the church through every means but late in the war much of this direct action and propaganda was stopped. Various explanations were advanced for this move.

Other members of the panel were Mrs. Frank L. Hewetson, Miss Dorothy G. Lee and Mrs. L. J. Kookan.

Describing the economy of Russia, Mrs. P. J. McGlynn said that financially the 5-year plans did not work. Heavy industries grew at the expense of light industry and agriculture and with great waste of human energy and raw materials. A discussion by panel members brought out the fact that Russian industrial progress had been ridiculously slow by our standards but that as compared with the previous Russian situation progress had been made.

Mrs. John S. Rice told of her investigations of the status of family life in Russia. She said the family status now is similar to that in 1917 after a disastrous experiment that included these steps, starting in 1917: liberation of marriage from religion, removal of sex crimes from the statute books, legalization of abortion, legalization of bigamy that brought a rocketing divorce rate and sharp drop in the birth rate, a curtailment of divorces in 1935 by raising the fees, abolition of freedom of abortion, the idealization of the family life and encouragement of child-bearing.

Education And Religion
Efficient Russian education methods were described by Mrs. Robert A. Bream. She described the Russian education system stresses early specialization with best opportunities for the best Communists. "Teachers are honored and well paid," she observed. The curriculum, dictated by the Party, emphasizes nationalism. Russians teach social responsibility early, make no racial or sexual discriminations, glorify work and idealize future planning for the expansion of the country.

Satisfying Our Sweet Tooth

Under normal international and business conditions American farms produce approximately one-fourth of the sugar we consume. Of course, in considering this gigantic shortage of one of our basic food products it is pertinent to remember that we have sugarcane and sugar beets to supply this huge deficiency. But our sweet shortages are not confined solely to sugar. We consume domestically around three and a half billion pounds of sirups and molasses each year while our farms produce around 800 million pounds. That a considerable portion is used for livestock feeding does not in any degree lessen the seriousness of our dependence on outside sources for these important products.

Farmers in this part of the country can scarcely expect to enter seriously into sugar-growing. Sugarcane is not adapted for northern climates and profitable sugar beet growing calls for a concentration of the industry in a large area so refining and other related activities are likewise concentrated. However, home gardeners and farmers may grow sugar beets for making table sirup for home use and they can grow sorghum cane for manufacturing nutritious sorghum molasses. And not among the least of plans to meet the future sirup and sugarcane shortages, they can and should plant more sugar maple trees to provide this delectable product for future generations.

Sorghum molasses is a rich source of iron in addition to an easily digested and assimilated form of sugar. There is a widespread urban demand for high quality sorghum molasses and a market supply far below customer requirements. Here is a potential revenue crop farmers should investigate and consider. And it goes without saying that every farmer should grow enough sorghum cane to produce molasses to supply family needs.

Fall plowing is beneficial for sorghum, although mid-April plowing will usually permit the preparation of a suitably firm and fine seed bed. Rough, cloddy land should be avoided, also a loose seed bed. Therefore, land should be plowed at least a few weeks in advance of planting time and the surface worked down well. In this connection it is advisable to remember that sorghum cane should be planted in this latitude in late May or after the soil warms up.

Of course, sorghum cane must mature ready for harvest and manufacture into molasses before fall frosts come. The popular Amber variety of cane require 75 to 100 days to mature from date of planting. The heavier stalked Orange needs two to three weeks longer, thus, if sorghum is planted the last week in May, harvest maturity will be reached, depending on the variety, around late August until the middle of September.

Sugar supplies will continue scarce for at least another year. A liberal store of delicious sorghum molasses will add greatly to the household sion of Russia. She pointed to lessons the United States might learn from Russian efficiency and warned of the "sometimes diabolical" faults in it.

Religion in Russia was described by Mrs. Sheldon Ackley. She said the corruption of the Czarist-controlled church may account for some of the attacks upon religion since the Revolution. Communists early set about to destroy the church through every means but late in the war much of this direct action and propaganda was stopped. Various explanations were advanced for this move.

Other members of the panel were Mrs. Frank L. Hewetson, Miss Dorothy G. Lee and Mrs. L. J. Kookan.

sweet requirements, while any surplus production will likely find a ready and profitable market in nearby towns and cities. Sorghum molasses were retailing to consumers at $2.50 a gallon last fall in several parts of the East and Middle West. This is a fair price level on which to build plans for growing cane this summer.

WISDOM IN CHOOSING EVERGREENS

There are spreading, horizontal, pyramidal and columnar types of evergreens. Pruning to control shape and spread is rarely possible, therefore, growers should choose the proper shape of evergreen in the first place to avoid having something wholly undesirable on their hands after growth is well started. For example, suppose a low-growing evergreen is wanted for a foundation site beneath a low window and a large pyramidal juniper is planted. In a few years the thrifty top will be shutting off the window view and otherwise developing into an ornamental nuisance. On the other hand, a spreading yew, such as Taxus cuspidata, or a Pfitzer juniper, would serve to fill the desired role admirably.

We were impressed with the importance of choosing the right type of evergreen by a neighbor a few years ago. In a small lawn area in front of a single living room window he planted a small juniper. It grew amazingly fast in the rich lawn soil and soon reached more than half-way above the middle of the top sash. Exasperated at the beautiful shrub, my neighbor cut the top back in an effort to make a "spreading" shrub of the type nature said was pyramidal. He ruined the plant.

Of course, a few evergreens, such as spreading yews, may be trimmed in much the same manner as a hedge is trimmed, but lopping out the entire tops is a fatal operation. Such problems cannot be solved with a pruning knife. The difficulty must be prevented when the plants are purchased by buying the proper type for each particular location.

Among the yews, for example, are three general types—Taxus cuspidata, low-growing; Taxus Hicksii, taller and somewhat rounded; and Taxus capitata, conical or pyramidal.

Three similar shapes are found among the Junipers—Juniper Pfitzeri, a beautiful spreading type; Greek Juniper, somewhat oval but medium low-growing; and Columnar Juniper, tall and slender in form.

The Mugo pine is rounded and dwarf. It makes an excellent evergreen for an individual location for emphasis where a taller or slimmer type could not be used.

The American arborvitae grows erect and roughly pyramidal. The Globe arborvitae, as its name indicates, is rounded. The latter can be maintained in its desired round form by light control pruning (trimming off the branch tips).

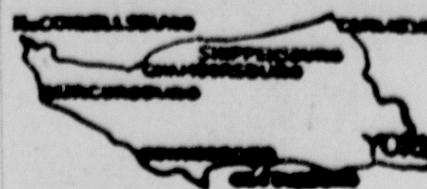

The Swedish Juniper is formal in type, tall growing and columnar. Its foliage is somewhat lighter in its blue shade than that of the Irish Juniper.

Norway spruces attain full treehood. Usually serve best in individual or accenting roles. The American white spruce deserves wider use where droughts or low temperatures adversely affect evergreens.

These and other evergreens of the so-called "conifer" group, to distinguish them from broad-leaved evergreens, may be planted any time during the next two or three weeks. Of course, one of the chief keys to success with newly planted evergreens is to prevent undue drying of the roots before and during planting operations and to keep the plant adequately supplied with water over the first summer and fall.

VFW OFFICERS INSTALLED AT EMMITSBURG

The Emmitsburg Veterans of Foreign Wars installed new officers on Wednesday night at the first anniversary party of the organization.

Robert T. Creamer, Jr., commander of the Department of Maryland, told the group that the VFW is "one of the grandest organizations in America because it honors the men who fought for their country overseas" in a brief talk given prior to his installation of the post officers.

C. J. Rowe, serving his second year as commander, headed the list of officers installed.

William Garner, historian, read a history of the organization since its establishment. The Emmitsburg post actually began, he told the group, with a meeting of World War I and II veterans held in the Emmitsburg firemen's hall on April 4, 1946.

John W. G. Keilholtz was acting chairman for the meeting and C. J. Rowe, who later was named commander, was appointed temporary adjutant.

Receives Charter

On Sunday, April 14, 1946, the post received its charter as memorial post 6658, VFW, and was instituted by Department Junior Vice Commander J. William McAvoy. The new VFW members were obligated and the elected and appointed officers were installed.

The officers then included: Commander, C. J. Rowe; senior vice commander, L. P. Norris; junior vice commander, R. Baker; quartermaster, A. Hoke; post advocate, F. A. Beall; chaplain, J. O. Addesberger; surgeon, T. Hoke and trustees, C. Baumgardner, G. Wagaman and E. Chrismer.

First major activity of the post was a Memorial Day celebration. Historian Garner told the group. On May 30 the Frederick drum corps, the school children and the Boy and Girl Scouts joined the VFW in a celebration which started at the Emmitsburg high school and after a short speech by the Rev. Raymond Cook proceeded to the doughboy statue where flowers were placed by the post officers.

The post charter closed on July 17, 1946, with a paid up membership of 93.

On Armistice day the post presented a flag to the new St. Joseph's high school. Throughout the year a number of activities were held by the post to raise money and increase the membership and finally a post home was purchased on January 28, 1947.

Most recent VFW activity was a decision to hold an Americanism essay contest in the two Emmitsburg high schools with $10 prizes to go to the winners in both schools. At present the post is planning to sponsor a carnival this coming summer, Garner reported.

In addition to department Commander Creamer, other state officers present Wednesday night included Mrs. Elizabeth Creamer, Depart-

Bugological Warfare: Uncle Sam will pay $27,000 for 4½ acres west of Camp Detrick, near Frederick.

The ground will be used as an experimental bombing range so the boys who are concocting the germs at Camp Detrick that may win the next war can find out how correct their guesses are that such and such an amount of bacteria will be able to wipe out such and such plants, or make them dangerous to human life. The purchase should be valuable as the products of Camp Detrick will probably be able to do $27,000,000,000, worth of damage in the next war, cause 27,000,000 deaths and leave 270,000,000 people in a position where they will either starve to death or quit fighting.

Miss Anna Marie Budde, who hails from Littlestown, was one of the singers at the annual two-day convention of the Maryland Federation of Music Clubs at Frederick. Mrs. James W. Kirk, of Cumberland, was named recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Oswald, Jr., Cumberland, second vice president and Mrs. Frank Stuart Rowe, Cumberland, historian, at the meeting.

Plaques for St. Lo: The Frederick county World War II Memorial association is to start Sunday a drive for $1,508 to secure a plaque for every Frederick countian who died at St. Lo, and to put up a tribute to all of the countians who fought there, of which there were many.

Frederick county farmers got the best prices yet for their products as of March 15, the state crop reporting service discloses. The index of prices was 299, up seven points from February and 14 points higher than March 15, 1946. Looks like Frederick countians will be "double-timing" during most of the year. The schools are going to stay on Standard time, so far as is known; many of the towns are holding 15,000 miles on a motor tour of the United States, all without mishap. They were within 500 miles from home—just two days' travel—when a tire blew out, the car overturned and both were injured. . . . Lots of

STATE SENATE GROUP DELAYS TAX BILL VOTE

Harrisburg, April 17 (AP)—The Senate finance committee held off action today on Gov. James H. Duff's $133,000,000 tax program as it continued to sift through objections to proposed new levies aired at a public hearing last week.

"The committee is looking over the objections dollar-wise," explained Sen. O. J. Tallman (R-Lehigh), Republican floor leader, when asked the reason for no meeting of the committee this week.

Asked if that meant the committee was reviewing the protests against the new levies on soft drinks and tobacco products and increases in cigarette, beer and corporation taxes in line with the state's financial needs, Tallman replied: "That's right."

May Be Amendments

Chairman James A. Getz (R-Allegheny), of the finance committee, meanwhile, disclosed there probably will be "some administrative amendments" to the House-approved fiscal program but declined to disclose their nature "until the committee meets, which probably will be next week."

Heaviest fire on the tax program came from soft drink bottlers who said the one cent a bottle levy would be ruinous and Pennsylvania milk dealers who objected particularly to the inclusion of chocolate milk in the definition of soft drinks.

Tobacco growers also insisted the proposed penny levy on every cigar would reduce consumption and tobacco leaf prices, while manufacturers' organizations pleaded for continuation of the manufacturers' exemption from the capital stock tax and retention of provisions for credits for losses in the corporate net income levy.

Forces Line Up

Opposing forces, meanwhile, lined up for and against Republican-sponsored bills which Republican leaders described as "strike control legislation."

A joint Senate-House public hearing has been set for Wednesday, April 23, the opening day of the state-wide CIO-Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council's three-day annual convention.

Declaring he has "an open mind" on the various labor measures, Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin), Republican state chairman, said there is no administration labor program.

The measures, already on legislative calendars but due for return to committees for the hearings, include proposals to ban the closed shop in any form and establish penalties up to $5,000 fine or five years in prison or both for forcing anyone as a condition of employment to join or remain a member of a union.

FARM PRODUCTS FUTURES BOOM

Washington, April 17 (AP)—The nations farm products futures markets are staging a business boom this spring which promises to outdo even spectacular 1929 in dollar volume.

Figures released by the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA), Wednesday show that transactions in grain, cotton, wool, eggs, butter, lard, potato and millfeed futures reached a rate in March which, if maintained, would total perhaps more than $45,000,000,000 in 1947.

Such transactions in 1929 amounted to about $43,000,000,000 compared with only $16, 826,506.00 in the fiscal year ended last June 30—the latest for which final official figures are available.

arbitration in labor disputes involving public utilities would be required.

Another measure, reported for action by the House compensation committee, would deny strikers unemployment compensation at any time, eliminating a provision allowing such payments at the end of a five-week penalty period.

Other legislative developments included: Selection of legislative committees to tour and inspect Pennsylvania's mental hospitals.

In 1908 an automobile tire cost about $35 and would run about 2,000 miles, while in 1936 a tire cost about $8 and would run about 20,000 miles.

FINDS TWO KINDS OF COOKING HOLD FORTH IN DIXIE

By HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—One of the best kept secrets of the south is the secret of southern cooking.

A casual traveler through the land of cotton, peanuts and the moss-hung pine is likely to emerge with the disillusioning conviction.

"There's no such thing as southern cooking."

This is because there are two types of southern cooking: the kind you find in the average restaurants and the kind you get in a good southern home. It's only in the latter that you are likely to enjoy the kitchen-born "southern fried hospitality" you seek.

Strictly Home Grown

When a southern lady really turns to her skillet and oven, she can dish up plates that would make a French gourmet go home and turn his famed portrait of Escoffier to the wall. She can turn out cornmeal "hush puppies" that leave white bread as in-ispid as the memory of a mouthful of fog.

Her fried chicken is as crisp as a military command, as tender as a high school girl's first love poem. She can do things with country ham that stir a man to idolatry and a desire to burn votive candles. She is the only woman in the world who has the good sense to know that fine old Bourbon whisky, like old sherry wine, is a benison in the kitchen. She uses it to flavor many wonderful dishes.

But the romance of southern cooking is strictly home-grown.

Another Story

Dining out is another story. The south has many renowned restaurants but they are only scattered oases.

This isn't the opinion of one visiting "dameyankee." In fact the restaurants are about the only thing below the Mason-Dixon line that an outsider can criticize without stirring the native sons to instantaneous rebuttal.

"Most of our restaurants are pretty bad," they mournfully agree.

Bachelors lead a sorry life everywhere, but in the south they must be cast iron men indeed. Nobody but a man raised in the steel traditions of Stonewall Jackson could graze three times a day in the average small southern restaurant and long endure.

For many restaurants seem to feel they've done their duty when they slap a plate before you containing:

Award Damages In Accident Lawsuit

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—Mrs. Eileen R. Minick, 22 of Derry township, Westmoreland county, and other plaintiffs were awarded damages of $19,076 against the Pennsylvania railroad in a common pleas trial Tuesday.

Mrs. Minick, hurt when a train hit an auto March 12, 1945, near Indiana, Pa., received an award of $15,721; her husband, Robert, $1,200; and Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Liben-good of Burrell township, Indiana county, owners of the car, $2,155.

(3) A spreading white gelatinous horror, called "grits," flavorless as warmed-over snow, which leaves you feeling like a maddened bottle of library paste.

The plate is preceded by a glass of fruit juice—canned, yes, even in Florida it's served from a can—and followed by a slab of apple pie plated with damp wallboard.

A case could be made for these restaurants in that they indubitably drive many reluctant men into matrimony, thus creating more families and benefitting the nation.

BOMB, THREAT LAID TO JEWS

London, April 17 (AP)—Scotland Yard officers rushed to the War office Wednesday after a telephone threat that the building was to be blown up—threat that came a few hours after a home-made bomb, timed to explode this morning, was found in a branch of the Colonial office.

Nothing suspicious was found at the War office, however, and police were unable immediately to link the telephoned threat with the actual leaving of explosives at the Colonial office, possibly in retaliation for the hanging of convicted underground agent Dov Bela Gruner at dawn on Wednesday in Palestine.

A Colonial office spokesman said the blast attempt was "part of the Jewish terrorist activities against this country."

Police said that the bomb was composed of 24 sticks of a French explosive resembling gelignite—not as powerful as they believed at first when they reported the bomb could have wrecked the entire four-story building.

Police, who removed the bomb for examination by Home office experts, found the fuse partially burned, indicating that an attempt to set off the explosives had misfired. Police said they believed the bomb was timed to explode at about the hour set for the execution of the convicted terrorists in Palestine.

LICENSE FEES MAY INCREASE

Harrisburg, April 17 (AP)—Hunting and fishing enthusiasts in Pennsylvania may find the cost of licenses boosted higher next year—if some legislators have their way.

The House Game committee approved yesterday a bill boosting hunting licenses from $2.10 to $3.10 in the latest effort to increase the cost for the privilege of hunting or fishing in Penn's woods.

All of the increase would be earmarked to the game fund under the measure which was amended in committee to strike out a provision permitting issuance of separate licenses for small and big game hunters—at $3.10 each.

The House and Senate each has already passed a bill increasing fishing license fees from $1.50 to $2, but the legislators must resolve a difference on whether half of the 50-cent boost should be specifically allocated for the propagation of trout.

Sponsors of the Senate measure claim 25 cents of the new increase is needed to expand trout-stocking plans, but the House sponsors counter that judgment on the disposition of the license boost should be left to the State Fish commission.

The House Fisheries committee, meanwhile, has acted favorably on a bill to boost the annual salary of the State Fish commission from $6,000 to $7,500 after voting against an increase to $8,000.

Hollywood News

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood (AP)—You'd better get acquainted with Betty Hutton, because you're going to be seeing a lot of her. She will soon be one of the most important stars in Hollywood.

It's a substantial limb I'm climbing out on, because Betty is a cinch for high honors after she is seen in her next movie, "The Perils of Pauline." In five years and 12 pictures, she has ascended from a jitterbug impersonator to a personality ranking with her most contemporary stars.

John E. and M. Florence Gentzler, East Berlin, sold to Keystone Milling company of Littlestown, a lot in Littlestown.

D. Miriam Taylor, Gettysburg, sold to Stephen and Emma Svarnas, Gettysburg, a lot on Springs avenue.

Reuben W. and Nettie R. Wolford, Huntingtown township, sold to William F. and Lucetta J. Wolford, same place, a six acre property in that township.

Dyson F. and Agnes L. Kennedy, Bendersville, sold to Raymond E. and Edna Mae Kint, same place, a one acre property in Bendersville.

Ralph R. and Laura G. Simpson, Strabon township, sold to Lulu A. Doersom, same place, a two acre property in that township.

Myrtle Watkins Enck, Biglerville, sold to Charles E. Baker, Butler township, a four acre property in Butler township.

parable predecessors, Jean Harlow and Carole Lombard. And it's my guess she'll surpass the late stars.

Hutton should be investigated by the U. N. Atomic commission. When she arrived in this town, she could do little but make funny faces, throw herself around and sing a loud song. By sheer energy and concentration, she has developed into an accomplished actress and can sing and dance anything that might be required.

Energy is the world for the girl. If you think she is lively on the screen, you should see her off. She keeps a finger on every production detail that concerns her. She bounces all over the set, kissing visitors (including members of the press) and shouting comments that sometimes make prop men blush.

This week I found Betty in her dressing room, in a comparative state of repose. She was resting momentarily before plunging into wardrobe fittings, screen tests and production arguments over "Dream Girl." She disclosed that she'll go without makeup in the picture since she tested without the stuff and looks "terrific." I asked if there were anything else she would like to say.

"Yes," she smiled, "you can tell."

You can't quit eating 'em!

the public that Betty Hutton is the most sensational, the most tremendous thing that has hit the movies in recent years.

Consider yourself told.

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck are back in town with tales of their rambling trip through Europe. The couple reported that they found the most enthusiastic movie fans in Belgium. The Dutch, they said, are not so rabid.

Bob said their press conference in Amsterdam was met with a decided lull. Finally, one reporter inquired about Bing Crosby; it seemed the Dutch couldn't understand his appeal.

"So for 45 minutes Barbara and I delivered a defense of Bing," Bob said. "They said they liked one Crosby film, 'The Road to Somewhere,' and that was because of the little dark fellow with him."

When I told Bob Hope about this, he smiled and said, "No comment."

WATCHES HOUSE AT WORK ON NEW LABOR MEASURE

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Being in the House gallery this week is an education in Congress at work. The House has been debating its new labor bill to restrict unions and expected to pass it today.

It was a cinch to pass. The Republicans, with the help of some Democrats, have had enough votes to slam it through with ease.

Since Congressmen have plenty of work to do, besides listening to debates or taking part in them, usually only a handful of the 435 members are on the floor at one time. This week they pretty well jammed the floor, sitting all afternoon listening or arguing.

A Lady Cuts Loose Much of the debate has been bitter, tart, sarcastic. And it's been shot through with politics.

Most of the time Congressmen try to be polite to one another but a woman this week startled them with one of the most frank statements about another member heard in the place for years.

This was when Mrs. Mary Norton, New Jersey Democrat, cut loose on Fred A. Hartley, Jr., a Republican Congressman from her state. Mrs. Norton had been chairman for 10 years of the House Labor committee.

It was Hartley's committee which put together the labor bill for the house to vote on. Mrs. Norton is against the bill.

No Respect For Hartley

Asked on the floor why she quit the committee, Mrs. Norton said she did so because she has no respect for Hartley and that in 10 years on the committee, while she was chairman, he had attended only six meetings.

Hartley replied by reading a letter in which AFL President William Green asked New Jersey unions to support him for reelection as "an outstanding friend of labor."

Rep. Leo Allen, Republican from Illinois, made a speech for the bill and pulled politics right into his talk. He said the Republicans in the House were going to vote for the bill because in last November's election campaign they promised they'd come up with a labor bill. He blasted the Democrats.

Then an 81-year-old Democrat from Allen's own state—Rep. Adolph Sabath, the oldest Congressman in length of service—jumped up. He called the bill the most "vicious and restrictive" ever brought before the house.

Friends And Foe

Then he said the Republicans are trying to "strip labor of all organizational rights, while ignoring the collusive organizations of industry and business."

Sabath had hardly sat down, and it was a long attack on the Republicans he made when one of the top Republicans took the floor. This was Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, floor leader of the Republicans. He said the bill was the kind of bill "Overwhelmingly demanded by the

Await Orders To Return To Work

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—Some 1,100 workers who voted to end a three-week-old strike at the Copperweld Steel Company plant at Glassport today awaited orders to return to work.

The walkout began March 23 when the company laid off 45 men due to a coal-weather gas shortage. Then men, members of CIO-United Steelworkers Local 1497, agreed yesterday to withdraw their demand for a written guarantee against retaliation by management and to comply with a verbal agreement which they said banned discrimination against strikers.

William J. McIlvaine, executive vice president of Copperweld, said the plant would reopen as soon as possible.

Today to withdraw their demand for a written guarantee against retaliation by management and to comply with a verbal agreement which they said banned discrimination against strikers.

William J. McIlvaine, executive vice president of Copperweld, said the plant would reopen as soon as possible.

All this—it took a great deal of time—was a warm-up. This kind of talk continued but eventually the House members got down to examining the bill itself.

NEW PORTENTS OF STEEL STRIKE ARE APPEARING

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—Stickers proclaiming "no contract, no work" are appearing on steel workers' automobiles these days and a few have even been plastered in the United Steelworkers offices here—possible portent of a major steel strike after April 30.

That's the expiration date of the present contract extension between the CIO union and the United States Steel Corp. The original pact ran out February 15 but was extended by mutual agreement.

The steelworkers, who have given no official blessing to the sticker campaign, explained the seals were brought here earlier in the week by Chicago members of the steelworkers' committee negotiating a new wage contract with "big steel."

Borrow Miners' Line
The seals, borrowing a line often used by the nation's miners, read simply: "Deadline April 30—no contract, no work."

An official pronouncement on the negotiation with U. S. Steel and the other steel makers will be forthcoming next Monday through the union's wage and policy committee which will ratify proposals made by the executive committee Saturday and Sunday.

The main question is: Will there be a steel strike as the result of failure after three months to scratch the surface of demands and counter proposals?

Thus far, it seems unlikely that the negotiators will be able to break the impasse by April 30.

The magazine Iron Age reported a "50-50 chance" of a strike, saying negotiations between company and union "have produced nothing."

14 Demands
The steelworkers have listed 14 principal demands, headed by a "substantial wage increase," guaranteed annual wage, portal to portal pay, premium pay for Saturday,

Sundays and holidays, broader vacation benefits the union shop as against the present maintenance of membership, and seniority rights governing hiring, firing and promotions.

Early in the negotiations U. S. Steel, bellwether of the industry generally, made it clear it wanted to return to the open shop and rule out the dues check-off and that it was not inclined to see eye to eye on the seniority demand.

There have been no negotiating conferences this week, the first interruption of the meetings in about three weeks.

One out of every five persons in the world is Chinese.

NEW ARMS ACT HAS BEHIND IT LONG HISTORY

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, April 17 (AP)—President Truman wants this government to be able to decide what nation can or can't buy arms here. Which means: We can help arm a nation we consider a friend and keep our arms away from one we consider an enemy. Mr. Truman has asked Congress to give the government that power by law. This request has quite a history behind it and probably a big future. It is another example of how deeply we have stepped into world affairs and how far we have moved from our prewar isolation. After World War I this country, staying out of the League of Nations, went isolationist. It stayed that way up to World War II. The idea was: Let's not do anything that will get us into another war. Blame Munition Makers This idea had big help in the 1930's from a Senate committee—headed by Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican—which investigated munitions. The committee helped convince the country that the big arms-makers had a large share in getting us into World War I. The argument was: By huge loans and sales of goods and arms to the Allies in World War I we had an interest in seeing them whip Germany and finally pitched in ourselves to bail them out. The Nye committee insisted we needed laws to prevent anything like that from happening again. So Congress passed the neutrality act in 1935. What it meant was: When war broke out, the President would ban arms shipments to both sides. It was invoked while Italy conquered Ethiopia and Franco's Palange subdued the Spanish Loyalists. Meanwhile, Hitler was dragging Europe closer to general war. Nazi Germany had been arming furiously. It was far better armed than Britain or France when World War II broke out September 1, 1939. Act Helped Fascists It was now plain that the Fascists were out for blood. This also was plain: Our neutrality act so far had made Fascists' victims easier victims. Although it had deprived them and the Fascists of arms, it hurt the Fascists less because the Fascists were always better armed. In this way our neutrality act helped

Plan Services For Educator

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—Funeral services for Clifford G. Dunnells, professor emeritus of civil engineering at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be held here today. He died Tuesday at the age of 72. A graduate of Lehigh University, Dunnells was a member of a firm of architects and designed some of the Pittsburgh area's largest buildings. He resigned his post at Tech in 1943, after 33 years' service. Mrs. Cora K. Harris, of Elkins Park, Pa., a sister, is among the survivors.

ality—giving arms to neither side in a fight—had helped Fascism.

Late in September, 1939, Mr. Roosevelt asked Congress to change the neutrality act. It did. The new act did this:

It permitted any nation to buy arms here, provided it paid cash for them and could carry them away in its own ships.

Cash-Carry Program This was called a Cash-and-Carry program. It still was supposed to be impartial. Actually it helped, and was intended to help, Britain and France and hurt Germany.

Since Britain and France controlled the seas they could buy arms here and carry them home in their own ships. Germany was cut off from us.

But that neutrality act of 1939 still stands: Any nation can get arms here, or material for making arms, by paying cash. It's still supposedly impartial.

Now President Truman wants it changed by Congress so the government can decide who can or can't get arms here.

HEMISPHERE HELD LACKING IN SOLIDARITY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
In these hard days when the world is perilously divided against itself, there is a weakness in the military defense—not to mention the good-neighbor policy—of the great bloc of nations comprising the Western Hemisphere.

This is due to a lack of solidarity which has evinced itself especially in the clash of views between the Argentine and Washington. The American government more than once has charged Argentina with fostering totalitarian Nazism and

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

has demanded that this influence be eliminated. Relations between the two countries have been strained, and this has been reflected in the attitudes of other Pan-American countries. 45 Program Not Ratified The result of this unhappy situation has been that the program for Inter-American defense, which was projected in the Act of Chapultepec in 1945, has not been ratified. This sweeping defense plan, which was to encompass both continents, was to be formalized in a meeting at Rio De Janeiro, and that parley still awaits a rapprochement which will bring the great Argentine back into the union. Since General Peron came to the Presidency last year, the Argentine has announced moves which his government cited as aimed at meeting the demand for eradication of Nazism in the country, and this has given rise to some hope that a solution of the difficulty was on its way. And now Senator Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, has made a speech which is widely interpreted as a pressing invitation to the Argentine to bury the past and get back into the fold. But the Senator didn't stop with local boys' club its annual administrative day. Roger, who acknowledged the black eye was acquired in a fight, advised his seven youthful department heads, to take steps against gang lawlessness in the teen-age ranks. Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—Skidding in the rain, Charles J. Dunn's automobile struck a pole early Wednesday, killing him. Dunn, 58-year-old salesman for New York wholesale dry goods firms, was on the way home from a bowling league banquet.

ADVICE
Binghamton, N. Y. (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Roger Dirocco sported a black eye when he arrived at city hall to take over duties as "mayor-for-a-day." "You have to duck fast sometimes," Mayor Walker B. Lounsbury observed in granting the Pan-American solidarity. He urged Canada to join the American republics and occupy the seat which was provided for her when the Pan-American Union was founded 57 years ago.
